EXCELLENCE IN DESIGN ♦ HAWAII

Refined Island Living

Smith Brothers Construction refines homes across Hawaii, pairing a local understanding of island living with the high-quality-meets-high-service process that has made it one of the most respected design-build firms across the islands

For over 20 years in Hawaii, Smith Brothers Construction's luxury custom homes and high-end renovations have exemplified a uniquely Hawaiian understanding of architectural rigor attuned to the rhythms of island life. Founded over 40 years ago and led by Jeff and Cheryl Smith and their daughter, Carly Guiducci, Smith Brothers offers the personal attention of a family firm alongside the smoothly integrated service of an experienced team. Most clients engage the firm at the earliest stages of a project, relying on Smith Brothers' in-house team to guide everything from land feasibility studies and design through permitting, construction, and move-in services.

"We're with our clients from the very beginning," says Cheryl. "Architecture, engineering, and design all happen under one roof."

That continuity allows the firm to shape homes around how clients live—indoors and out, season to season. Projects prioritize flow, durability, and comfort, with careful attention paid to materials, siting, and long-term performance in Hawaii's climate. The firm takes on only a limited number of projects each year, ensuring each home receives focused attention and a concierge level of care.

"This isn't just a job for us," Carly explains. "It's a long-term commitment to our clients and their homes, well into the future."

Across the islands, Smith Brothers' work reflects both technical precision and an understanding of lifestyle—homes designed for gathering, entertaining, and daily ease. That approach has fostered enduring relationships, repeat clients, and a loyal team of craftspeople, many of whom have worked with them for decades.

"Relationships are everything to us, and they're built on providing a great experience for our clients," says Jeff. "We want the process of building your new home to be as exceptional as the final result."
